SHORTAGE IN WAGONER COUNTY

State Examiners Make Report of Investigation

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 14.—(Special.) Shortage and discrepancy in the accounts of the county and township officers of Wagoner county amounted to $11,000, according to a report made by J. B. Cahill and Arthur Jones, special deputy inspectors and examiners, working under the department of Fred Parkinson, state auditor and inspector. During the course of the examination $12,000 of this amount was paid back to the various officers against whom the shortage was charged. The report shows that from January 9, 1911, to December 31, 1912, the county spent $45,488.17 for bridges and $7,928.29 for the construction of jails and cells. The report is a full detailed one and indicates that the examiners were forced in the interest of the taxpayers of the county to request the suspension of the clerk of the district court, Harry Hinkle, and the sheriff, James R. Long. This was done by District Judge H. D. Allen. Hinkle has since resigned. Hinkle has been indicted for embezzlement. Hinkle has tried to escape criminal prosecution by pleading insanity. Neither of the men has as yet had their trial.
